Year of Rabbit

Written by MASTER LIM ENG CHEONG 林永昌著

It was a jungle out there. Did we survive and roar with success in Tiger Year 2010?

The stock market was heading north in the earlier months until it took a hit in April/May 2010 from the European sovereign debt crisis. It picked up momentum in June 2010 and the Straits Times Index (STI) is now hovering around the 3100-point level.

Property prices climbed steadily as well, sounding alarm bells along the way and indirectly putting wedding bells on hold. The authorities stepped in by imposing new regulations to cool down the sizzling hot property market before it got out of control.

Last year, ProsperTimes™ Jan issue, 2010 Tiger Year Predictions, was spot on! We mentioned about international conflicts too. History repeated itself in 2010. Tensions escalated and temperatures rose between the 2 Koreas on the peninsular after the North Korean artillery bombarded one of the South Korean island in Nov 2010.

The ferocious Golden Tiger will leap out of our path soon and makes way for the hopping Golden Rabbit.

The Rabbit zodiac, the fourth animal in the Chinese horoscope, will be taking the centre-stage soon. Will we witness a calmer and more harmonious 2011? How is the stock market outlook and will the property prices rise further?

This issue of ProsperTimes™ will bring you some insights and snippets on what lies in store for us in the coming year.

BEWARE OF HIDDEN THREATS

Do You Know ...

The Hsia Calendar (夏历) is an amazingly accurate time computation system that is widely used by the Chinese communities to perform destiny analysis, fortune telling and to understand the climatic changes.

The unique feature of this system is that every year, every month, every day and every hour is represented by 2 characters, namely the Heavenly Stem (天干) and the Earthly Branch (地支).

The system encompasses 10 Heavenly Stems and 12 Earthly Branches, and each of the Heavenly Stem or the Earthly Branch is represented by Yin and Yang (阴阳) and one of the Five Elements (五行).

The Five Elements are representation of the basic components of everything in the Universe. The relationship between the Elements, which comprise of Water (水), Wood (木), Fire (火), Earth (土) and Metal (金), will enable us to predict one's fortunes or luck and determine what's coming our way.

Similarly, the Year of the Rabbit, 2011, is symbolised by a Heavenly Stem and an Earthly Branch (辛卯) in the Hsia Calendar.

The Heavenly Stem xin (辛) represents Yin Metal and the Earthly Branch mao (卯) represents Yin Wood. This is a Metal Rabbit year that implies Metal "sitting" on top of Wood.

According to the Cycle of Birth (生) and Destruction (克), which governs the inter-relationship between the Five Elements, Metal will conquer or destroy Wood (金克木). This is a sign of conflict or disharmony. Different from Tiger Year, xin (辛) Metal symbolises a dagger and it implies hidden danger or threats that are not immediately obvious to the common people.

Exchanging alleging remarks or gossips during informal cocktail parties may bring about detrimental effects. There will still be disagreements but these are of a smaller scale. On surface, people may be on friendly terms and enjoying cordial relationships but deep within, there could be brewing animosity and sabotaging behind the scene. Sniff out suppressed resentment within your team and nib it in the bud before it gets out of control. True sincerity and constructive communication in a timely manner will prevail and save the day.

The most recent years that both Metal and Wood elements appeared together are Year 2004, 2005 and 2010. Year 2004, 2005 and 2010 are years of Wood Monkey (甲申), Wood Rooster (乙酉) and Metal Tiger (庚寅) respectively with Wood "sitting" on Metal or vice versa. During these years, we witnessed military confrontation between North and South Korea in 2010 and a series of terrorist attacks, most notably were bombings in Madrid, London, Bali and Iraq. On 26 Dec 2004, mankind experienced the giant tsunami that brought death tolls to hundreds of thousands and changed the coastlines of many countries.

The Hsia Calendar is formulated on a 60-year cycle (六十甲子年). This means that the same pair of Heavenly Stem and Earthly Branch (辛卯) was also experienced in Year 1951. During this year, espionage between nations was rampant and the Korean War, which started in the previous year, continued and resulting in more people losing their lives. In the same year, King Abdullah I of Jordan and the Pakistani Prime Minister were assassinated.

From historical occurrences, Year 2011 is again unlikely to be a peaceful year, with continuing conflicts or disagreements and instances of espionage and assassination.

The Heavenly Stem xin (辛), which is represented by the Yin Metal element, is likened to a dagger or jewelry. It exudes an air of gracefulness and flair, while preserving steel-like characteristics within. It symbolises high tolerance, authoritative mannerism and ostentatious behaviour. This could imply that Rabbit Year 2011 is a year of hidden conflicts with different sides displaying untrue impressions of themselves. Face issue is all the more important, leading to more people putting up a brave front. Do not judge a book by its cover. There could be more than meets the eye.

The Rabbit mao (卯) belongs to the Wood element (木) and it represents the peak of spring. During this time, trees have grown and blossomed. As a result, their huge crown canopies become vulnerable to gales, leading to broken branches, fallen leaves or even uprooted trees. This implies injuries or broken limbs. Exercise caution in your regular gym workout or golfing sessions.

Mao (卯) also signifies the Birth (长生) of Yin Water (癸水), which could mean more rain or water-related incidences in Rabbit Year 2011. Beware of floods and ensure that proper evacuation measures are in place.

Who does the Cupid Target in Rabbit Year 2011?

The Rabbit mao (卯) is also the Flower of Romance Star (桃花). The Flower of Romance Star governs relationship and sociability.

Year 2011 will see more couples tying the knot and walking down the red carpet. People born in the Year of Tiger (寅), Horse (午) or Dog (戌) tend to be under strong influence of this star. Their social circle is likely to widen, they will be popular among their peers and the likelihood of these people getting hitched is higher.

On the hindsight, Rabbit Year 2011 could also be a year when there will be more relationship entanglement issues, love scandals or extra martial affairs. Married couples are advised to remain faithful to their spouse or risk facing the wrath of social backlash.

六冲无恩之刑午 酉子害卯太岁辰 相害相破 CLASHES OF ANIMAL ZODIACS

The Rabbit (卯) is in direct clash with the Rooster (酉). This is a clash (六冲) between the Wood (木) and Metal (金) elements. Such a clash often relates to relationship issues and frequent arguments between a couple. It is advisable to clear misunderstandings through open communications.

As the Rabbit (卯) is in direct clash with the Rooster (酉), also known as Six Clashes (六冲), and causes an Ingratitude Clash (无恩之刑) with the Rat (子), a Conflicting Clash (相害) with the Dragon (辰) and a Related Clash (相破) with the Horse (午), people born in the Year of the Rooster, Rat, Dragon or Horse have to be especially cautious. A clash often results in more changes or life developments in that year and it also implies more challenges and there could be health related issues as well.

It is therefore recommended for people born in these years, except for people born in the Year of Dragon, to carry a Dog pendant so as to alleviate the negative effects of the clash. People born in the Year of Dragon may carry a Tiger pendant instead.

In Rabbit Year 2011, the direction of the Grand Duke (太岁) is East (东方). Avoid travelling directly towards this direction and try not to carry out major or extensive renovation works in the East sector of your house.

Some examples of famous people who are born in the Rooster Year and clash with the Rabbit in 2011 are David Tao (陶喆), Jennifer Lopez and Fernando Alonso. Those who are born on a Rooster Day will be affected by the clash and may face relationship challenges in 2011 as well. These people include Japanese singer, Ayumi Hamasaki and Singapore actor, Christopher Lee (李铭顺).

Academic Star

Another significant star that most parents would be interested is the Academic Star (文昌). Rabbit Year 2011 sees the Academic Star (文昌) residing in the North sector (352.5° – 7.5°). With proper guidance, school children who have their study desks placed in this sector will be able to enjoy good grades and success in examinations. Please bear in mind that this is a generic application. A more detailed and accurate analysis by a professional Feng Shui practitioner is still required for a more customised and exact placement.

文昌

So, Who is Enjoying Good Luck in Rabbit Year 2011?

The Rabbit (卯) combines with the Dog (戌) in what is commonly known as the Six Combinations (六合), and with the Pig (亥) and Goat (未) in Triple Combinations (三合). People born in the year of Dog, Pig and Goat will therefore be in harmony and enjoy good luck in Rabbit Year 2011.

However, this is only a generic assessment and should not be taken strictly or seriously as an analysis of one's fortunes or destiny. Four Pillars of Destiny or BaZi (also commonly known as Eight Characters, 八字), which is based on one's date and time of birth, offers a much more accurate and detailed analysis of one's destiny, luck and fortunes.

Health Matters

Different body parts or organs are represented by different Heavenly Stems (天干) and Earthly Branches (地支).

Year 2011 is governed by the Golden Rabbit (辛卯). Metal, generally, is associated with the lungs, and Wood is associated with the liver.

People who are born in the Year of Rooster (especially in 1945 and 1957), have to take extra care of their health in Rabbit Year 2011. Health problems related to the liver, lungs or respiratory system could arise. Reduce your alcoholic consumption and refrain from smoking.

People are also more injury prone with higher likelihood of injuries inflicted on the limbs or neck. Take care when you exercise and make it a good habit to do some stretching exercises first before your workout.

Besides regular exercise (not strenuous exercises) to increase our metabolism rate and improve our immune system, which is represented by the Water element (水), sufficient intake of Vitamin B, C and E, which are effective anti-oxidants, will also help in alleviating the imbalances.

Predictions 2011

STOCK & PROPERTY MARKET

We were quite accurate in predicting the stock market outlook in Tiger Year 2010. We saw ups and downs, and we were quite right in forecasting the timing of the upward trends too. By the end of 2010, the Straits Times Index (STI) was hovering in close proximity to the 3100 mark. Will we continue to see a bullish market in Rabbit Year 2011?

Well, it's going to be a roller coaster ride in Rabbit Year 2011. Maybe even a rougher one than the previous year. Let's face it. There isn't a stock market that will rise forever and similarly, there isn't one that is doomed to free fall. What goes up has to come down eventually, and when it hits the bottom, it will start to rise again. It's only natural. Just like the relativity of Yin and Yang.

There is no absolute winner in a stock market. The only way to profit from it is to maximise your winnings and minimise your losses. The crucial point here is timing. Enter the market at the right time and exit when the wind is changing its direction. Ride the wave or risk drowning in the rough seas. No one is an expert in the volatile stock market. Using Chinese metaphysical forecasting method and analysing elemental influences, the stock market outlook in Rabbit Year 2011 seems rocky.

The curve during the first couple of months seems relatively flat. It starts to undergo correction and becomes erratic until the middle of the year. The upward trend seems to be more prominent during the mid year and loses steam in the September /

October period. Unlike the previous year when we witnessed favourable reports towards the end, the chances of seeing a repeat in Rabbit Year 2011 are low. Know your limits and pull out before it is too late.

The property market for Rabbit Year 2011 will still be vibrant and active. Rising rate may have stabilised but prices may still be heading north though at a slower rate. Amid pressure from the ground, the authorities may then review the regulations that they have put in place and make some fine tuning to the existing ones, hoping again to cool down the sizzling hot industry. As long as there is a strong demand for housing on our limited land, market forces will again push up the prices. Overall, the property market is still vibrant in Rabbit Year 2011 and is very much alive and kicking. The chances of property prices coming down are slim.

Employing elemental influences to predict the ups and downs of the stock market is a very basic form of analysis. Using this technique to forecast macro economic trends still has its own limitations. A more detailed and accurate analysis would be using the Four Pillars of Destiny or commonly known as BaZi (四柱八字命理分析) to predict each individual's fortune. Only then, we will be able to tell if the changing stock market or property market is performing to the individual's advantage.

The information presented in this section is far from conclusive and should not be used as a basis for speculation.

Businesses & Industries

The dominant Metal (金) element in Rabbit Year 2011 bodes well for the Earth (土) element and Fire (火) element businesses. These include the property- or real estate-related businesses, construction and mining industries; and finance, electronics products, power & energy, oil & gas, lighting, food and entertainment businesses.

The Fire (火) element businesses will enjoy favourable wealth luck in the 3rd quarter but competition is keener, while the Earth (土) element businesses enjoy good times in the 3rd and 4th quarter of the year but regulatory issues could pose some challenges.

The least prosperous in Rabbit Year 2011 is the Wood (木) element businesses. Not only is the wealth luck absent for these businesses, they face tougher competition and may encounter intervention from relevant authorities too. These include the agriculture, publishing, paper, forestry, fashion, furniture and recycling businesses. Generally, a tough and challenging year ahead for these businesses.

The Wood (木) element in Rabbit Year 2011 is also a good sign for the Metal (金) element and Water (水) element businesses. The Wood represents the wealth for the Metal element businesses, while it represents productivity and creativity for the Water element businesses. These include the banking, jewellery, industrial machinery, computer, high-tech industries, shipping, trading, tourism, logistic and transport businesses. They will enjoy better luck in the 1st quarter of the year.

Flying Star Chart for Rabbit Year 2011

Environmental or cosmic energies flow and exist in cyclical periods and change from year to year (风水轮流转). This implies that positive and negative energies exist in different directions in different years. In Rabbit Year 2011, using Flying Star of Feng Shui (玄空飞星), Star 7 takes precedence and is the dominant star. The Flying Star Chart for Rabbit Year 2011 is plotted as shown:

Star 7, which is represented by the Metal (金) element, takes centre-stage in Rabbit Year 2011. As Star 7 is considered inauspicious and Metal supports Water (金生水), this means we may encounter more floods or water-related incidences in Rabbit Year 2011. Beware of robberies and fire outbreaks too. Star 7 also symbolises young ladies or girls. Parents have to be mindful that there could be more misfortune or accidents affecting young ladies or girls in this year. This is especially so for those born in the Year of Rooster.

Star 5, which is the most calamitous star, arrives in the East. This inauspicious star will cause critical illness if activated. It is recommended for homes that face East or have their main doors facing East to hang a six-rod wind chime or 6 ancient metal coins to dissipate the negative energies. The negative energies of Star 5 are extremely potent in March 2011.

Special precautions have to be taken for inauspicious Star 2 and 3 too. Star 2 and 3 arrive in the South and North respectively. Star 2 brings about sickness, while Star 3 causes quarrels and legal entanglements. A six-rod wind chime can be used to dispel Star 2 inauspicious energies. To dissolve the bad energies of Star 3, a lamp or a red mat / rug can be used.

For Rabbit Year 2011, the most auspicious sector is the Northwest. To activate the good energies, a lamp or a red mat / rug can be placed in this sector of the house. Placing a water feature in this sector can bring about prosperity and unexpected wealth! Another auspicious direction is the West. Installing a hi-fi system or TV in this sector can activate the positive energies.

We hope you have a better understanding of what lies ahead of us in Rabbit Year 2011. We would like to wish you a very happy and prosperous Rabbit Year 2011!
